The two sites have been sampled pretty much every year since the 1960's. I believe they are both currently still being sampled (meaning I think there is data from this year - certainly data from last year). I don't know if they are drilled or old wells. I can look that up and get back to you.

How many times have they been sampled? Are they plugged or can they still be sampled? Were they wells drilled specifically for sampling or are they old drinking water wells?
